Proactive Appellate Strategies

At Conroy Simberg, our attorneys take a proactive approach to appellate advocacy. We understand that successful outcomes on appeal often require extensive groundwork early in the litigation process, well before final judgment. As a result, the members of our appellate practice team are actively involved in cases throughout the entire litigation process. Our attorneys regularly research and prepare a variety of motions and petitions, ranging from pretrial to post-trial motions, as well as filing and defending petitions for extraordinary relief. We work closely with trial attorneys to identify the strengths and weaknesses of arguments and issues for appeal. Our appellate attorneys carefully analyze cases and attend trials to develop legal strategies and make certain the record is properly preserved for appeal.

Conroy Simberg's dedicated appellate practice department allows our firm to take immediate action to resolve complex legal and procedural issues. Our appellate attorneys have extensive experience handling emergency issues that may arise at trial and are readily available to provide emergency guidance and assistance.
