Construction

Conroy Simberg has earned a nationwide reputation for providing legal representation to businesses and individuals working across the construction industry. The members of our construction law team have an extensive understanding of the industry and work closely with clients to design defense tactics and strategies that resolve construction law claims as quickly and cost-effectively as possible.

The construction law attorneys at Conroy Simberg have years of experience counseling and defending companies and professionals operating in the construction industry, including:

- Contractors
- Subcontractors
- Developers
- Condominium and Apartment Complex Owners
- Condominium Associations
- Property Owners
- Engineers
- Architects and other Design Professionals
- Suppliers
- Manufacturers

Developing Innovative Defense Strategies

The attorneys in our construction litigation practice handle a diverse range of construction matters, ranging from complex construction defect cases, to contract disputes, to design and material failure claims. Our legal professionals combine their legal skills with an in-depth understanding of the construction industry to develop methods and strategies that best protect and promote our clients' business and financial interests.

At Conroy Simberg, we believe in taking a proactive approach to avoid costly legal claims and lengthy litigation. Our attorneys regularly counsel clients on complex construction contracts and we carefully review proposals and agreements to prevent disputes, minimize risk and reduce our clients' potential for future liability.

Unfortunately, obstacles and conflicts cannot always be predicted or avoided. When issues do arise, our attorneys collaborate with clients to develop innovative strategies that effectively resolve disputes so that they can focus on what they do best, running their businesses.

Diverse Experience

Since our firm's inception in 1979, Conroy Simberg has grown from two attorneys to approximately 130 lawyers located in 13 offices in Florida and Georgia. These attorneys work as a team to provide legal services and representation to the construction industry.

When handling complex cases, the lawyers in our construction law practice group regularly collaborate with attorneys working across our firm's diverse practice areas to develop strategies aimed at settling claims as rapidly as possible. This depth of experience positions our firm to successfully defend against all types of construction law claims.

At Conroy Simberg we appreciate that a great deal is at stake when a client is facing a construction law claim. Lengthy litigation and courtroom battles not only impact our clients' operations and finances, but they can also harm our clients' business and professional reputations.

Since every new construction law case is unique, we deliver personalized service and attention throughout the entire legal process. When handling construction law cases, our lawyers take the time to learn about our client's business operations as well as their concerns, needs and objectives. We strive to keep our clients informed at all stages of the litigation process and focus on developing legal strategies that minimize interruptions while producing optimal results.