Serving the Legal Needs of the Hospitality Industry

Conroy Simberg is a premier civil defense law firm with extensive experience representing businesses, insurance carriers and other types of entities working across the hospitality industry.

Our hospitality practice counsels a diverse range of clients including restaurants, hotels and resorts, condominium owners, sports arenas, entertainment complexes, municipalities, parks and recreational facilities. The attorneys at our firm have an in-depth understanding of the diverse legal issues impacting the hospitality industry. We leverage this knowledge to provide business-focused transactional advice and develop innovative solutions that successfully resolve disputes as quickly and cost-effectively as possible.

Our diverse legal team handles a broad range of legal matters impacting the hospitality industry, including:

- General liability and casualty claims
- Premises liability claims
- Property claims
- Insurance coverage issues
- Commercial litigation
- Construction litigation
- Employment law disputes
- Workers' compensation actions
- Intentional torts claims
- Intellectual property cases

At Conroy Simberg we are proud of the reputation our attorneys have established for providing high quality legal representation to businesses and organizations operating across the state and around the country. Since our firm's inception in 1979, we have emerged as one of the southeast's largest civil defense firms, with nearly 130 attorneys working in 13 offices throughout the state.

Resolving Claims Efficiently and Economically

The attorneys at Conroy Simberg are committed to resolving claims against members of the hospitality industry efficiently and economically. In each case that we handle, our lawyers take the time to fully understand the needs and concerns of the organizations that we are representing.

We develop strong relationships with our hospitality industry clients and become intimately familiar with their businesses and operations. Whether we are defending against a routine slip and fall liability claim or a complex construction litigation case, our legal professionals are committed to providing personalized service. Our legal team thoroughly investigates all claims and legal disputes and works side by side with clients to develop strategies and approaches designed to best serve their legal, financial and business objectives.

Diverse Practice Groups

Developing a successful defense requires an extensive understanding of the diverse and ever-changing laws and regulations governing the hospitality industry. The attorneys in our hospitality practice group have years of experience representing industry members. They stay at the forefront of issues impacting the hospitality industry and are aware of new and emerging business trends and legal developments. Several of our attorneys are members of associations and organizations like DRI, CLM, and TIDA.

When handling complex cases, the lawyers in our hospitality group regularly work with attorneys across our firm's diverse scope of practice areas. Our legal professionals share resources and collaborate on cases to develop legal solutions that resolve cases quickly and effectively. This depth of experience and multi-disciplinary approach positions our firm to successfully counsel and defend against all types of claims and disputes involving members of the hospitality industry.
