Commercial Litigation

Innovative Approaches to Problem Solving

The attorneys at Conroy Simberg have decades of experience litigating complex commercial litigation cases. Our commercial litigation team defends local, regional and national corporations, insurance companies and other business and professional entities involved in complex commercial disputes. Our attorneys focus on creating legal strategies that quickly resolve disputes while protecting and promoting our commercial clients' goals, interests and objectives.

At Conroy Simberg, we understand that our clients are not in the business of litigation. Commercial disputes can threaten a company's financial position, as well as its business reputation and stability. While the legal professionals at our firm are experienced trial attorneys, they focus on avoiding litigation by negotiating settlements and employing alternative dispute resolution methods, including mediation and arbitration.

When conflicts cannot be resolved through settlement or alternative dispute resolution methods and litigation becomes necessary, our lawyers are prepared to aggressively defend clients at all stages of the state and federal trial and appellate court processes.
